

The FCC must insure the integrity of non-commercial educational licenses. The interference standards should be returned to levels which effectively protect service areas. Minimum distance from stations on the same frequency and adjacent channels must be maintained. The FCC should consider creating new bands for non-commercial stations to migrate to, to relieve the congestion and interference facing many non-commercial FM educational licensees. Non-Comm Translators should be more carefully regulated.